Foodbank donation from generous stroke unit staff

Thoughtful staff from University Hospital Crosshouse’s stroke unit have made a generous donation to an East Ayrshire food bank.

Consultants, nursing staff, physiotherapists, speech and language and occupational therapists from Ward 4D each donated a selection of food from their own shopping trolleys to the food bank volunteers at St Columba’s church in Stewarton.

Staff nurse Joanne Halliday, who organised the donation, explains: “The thought first came to me at Christmas time when I realised that not everyone is as fortunate as myself and my colleagues. The staff in the unit have been so kind and generous. We hope to be able to support other good causes in the local area in future.”
